Hamilton Easter Field Shows Drawings He Collected in His Student Days.

Forty pastels of woodland subjects done in Maine last summer by Robert Henri are on view in the Montross Galleries and will give great pleasure a his friends and pupils. Indeed, they will not give offence even to the artist's artistic opponents, for he has a few of those, too, as most artists have who gain prominence.

The pastels ought not to offend beudiced that Mr. Henri has had a vention. rood time doing them, and no excuse s so potent for a work of art as the pleasure it gave the maker. Then, oo, they do not make great pretenions-they are sketches, swift dashes for the color-and when pretension is hushed.

The Emir's Proclamation

BOKHARA is a Mohammedan country governed by an Emir, until recently under the protection of Russia. The old city is entirely native, and the new city is considered military territory. Land there could not be purchased by foreign owners, but a few years ago Revillon Frères obtained a special permit to build and trade there.

When the Red Guards attacked Bokhara last April a large part of the city was burned, but the Revillon zavode fortunately escaped damage.
